

Alice Ignites Intellectual Curiosity

Above: Elementary school students learn alternate perspectives from a second year.

CLEVE BEACH, 4:20 P.M. - A class of second and third graders from Grinnell were surprised to find that Grinnell College's Ignite program offered a special topics class taught by college students partaking in the Alice party.

"Today was the best class ever!" said seven year old Tony Rodriguez. "I learned about space!"

Ignite head coordinator Lauren Teckie elaborated on how this came about.

"We were forced to cancel painting, our most popular class, last minute. I then happened to see a group of students drawing with chalk on the south campus patio.

I asked them if they'd share with a group of thirty little kids, and was shocked at how enthusiastic they were!" said Lauren.

This isn't the first time community programs and campus holidays have coincided. In 2007, Drake library's photography class held a covert shooting exercise at 100 days. In 2012, the community meal coincided with the celebrated '4/20', with positive results for the people participating in 4/20 and disastrous consequences for the people providing the food. In 2013, Grinnell's Alcoholics Anonymous organized what students called the worst block party of all time.

This year, Ignite students joined Grinnellians celebrating Alice in a variety of activities, such as coloring with chalk, making paper airplanes, blowing big bubbles and engaging in a casual but thorough discourse

Alice Page 3

Beer CAFOs to be Phased Out

CHARLES BENSON BEAR CENTER - Recently, the Grinnell College Athletics Department announced that they will slowly be phasing out the Beer CAFO programs and will allow athletes to consume substances other than alcohol. Beer CAFOs, or Concentrated Athlete Feeding Operations that utilize beer and other forms of alcohol, have been a mainstay on Grinnell College; however, huge backlash from the campus community has worn the administration down.

"The most well-known Beer CAFO on campus is probably the Tennis House," explained Beer CAFO activist Shannon Chi '16. "You can always hear them shrieking and whimpering from inside the building . . . Please, let them rest . . ." Beer CAFOs confine athletes in small, secluded areas for the entirety of the season where they are force fed a diet of varying concoctions of Natural Light, Keystone Light, and if the budget allows it, Rolling Rock. This process, it is argued, allows for the mass production of top tier athletes ready to compete in the "real world" of athletics.

The college has been highly resistant to the idea of disassembling the Beer CAFOs despite constant

"Please, let them rest"
-Shannon Chi '16

pressure to shut them down from students, professors, and government scientists. "There have been multiple studies that illustrate how destructive these practices are on the environment and the psyches of the students, but the college refuses to listen," says Professor Grady Orstein, Biology. "Finally after we've proven that these Beer CAFOs may start hurting the college financially the college is starting to pull back."

Indeed, the Athletic program is allowing previous Beer CAFO athletes to roam the campus and most surprisingly, drink water in ratios higher than one water:two alcoholic drinks. "It's been so long . . . since I've actually been able to taste water and alcohol," said George Murphy '17. "The water here really isn't that bad."

Some athletes and scientists, however, are concerned what the implications of this will be in the long-term. "The college has explicitly been enforcing Beer CAFOs as a substitute for health practices and good mental health management," said Professor Orstein. "As they begin to phase students out of these programs, what will happen after they realize there isn't much of a support structure left for them?" For now, athletes and students alike are enjoying the time together, roaming the limits of Mac Field.

Fruit Roll-Up Wreaks Havoc

DINING HALL- Last Wednesday, a Blastin' Berry Fruit Roll-Up™ was discovered in one of the brand-new stainless steel refrigerators located in the southeast corner of the Dining Hall. Moments later, madness ensued as students fought, tooth-and-nail, for the glory of being crowned the rightful owner of the roll-up.

The original discoverer of the roll-up is reportedly Lou Turner '19. At the time of the unexpected finding, Turner was allegedly gathering provisions from the new refrigerators as his allergies to eggs, milk, soy, dairy, meat, legumes, grains, nuts, oils, tubers, fungi, amino acids, leaves and molecules prevent consumption of every prepared item in D-hall.

Turner immediately identified the Fruit Roll-Up as a Blastin' Berry, but no sooner did he reach for its gleaming wrapper did the glorious sound of cellophane reverberate throughout the surrounding tables. Simultaneously, students that had been studiously ignoring each other in opposite booths stood up, with forks for rapiers and trays for shields, and commenced in swordfight. Within two minutes, over seventy-five students were engaged in combat. "I have no idea where the roll-up went— one second it was mine; the next, it had escaped

"I . . . just wanted something commercialized and fake for once!" -A. Jeffs me," recounted Turner in an exclusive interview following the incident.

The repeated shouts of "Roll!" "Up!" and "Mine!" traveled to the furthest corners of D-Hall, including the Whale Room and the upstairs secret banquet hall. As diners abandoned their meals, friends, and sanity in favor of the chance to obtain 4-inches of artificially flavored nostalgia, the roll-up was snatched and re-snatched again and again.

Some faculty and staff members eating in the upstairs meeting rooms joined in on the kerfuffle, some going so far as to threaten students with D's and F's on papers lest they did not move out of the way.

"It was the opportunity of a lifetime, and I failed," sobbed Audrey Jeffs '18. "I was so burned out from only eating sustainable, all-natural, GMO-free food from Mother Earth all the time and just wanted something commercialized and fake for once!"

It is unknown as to how or why the roll-up was located in the new refrigerators, as these fruit products are classified as "forbidden substances," according to Residence Life policy.

There is also no word on the roll-up's eventual destination—somehow, it got lost in the chaotic fray, never to be seen or heard from again.

This Week's Horoscope
Listen to what They have to say, on this brand new Spring day...

The path is hazy and unclear
but don't sweat it, you're not running that fast.

Sextra Credit
Tips and Tricks to finish right on time!

Looking for something hot this summer?
Try looking at the sun ;)

Also In The News

Student Participation In Today's Democratic Primaries Expected To Be Low Due To Lack Of Facebook Profile Picture Opportunities

College Continues Efforts To Change Name Of Hell Week But Keeps Every Other Aspect Same

America Has Confirmed That Politics Is Best When It Is Not For Entertainment Purposes

Discarded Packs Of Sunflower Seeds Litter Campus

Nonseniors Attempt To Sympathize With Seniors Who Don't Have To Go through This Ever Again

Brazil Proves Politics Can Get Worse

Oil Demonstrates Its Versatility In Causing Both Forest Fires And Destruction Of Marine Habitats

World In Shock As Facebook Is Revealed To Actually Use Its Power Over Vast Amount Of Data And Advertising Space

Little Known Fact: You Will Probably Survive The Next Week

2016 Olympics Relocate to Grinnell

Above: The Olympic Torch passes by Grinnell and will return after circling all of America.

CHARLES BENSON BEAR CENTER - In an effort to liven up the summer for students staying in Grinnell, the college has announced that the 2016 Summer Olympics will move from Rio de Janeiro to Grinnell.

Upon political turmoil and unfinished construction in Brazil, the International Olympic Committee (IOC) approved a last minute plan to move the games to the heart of America. Bill Peterson, President of the IOC, said, "Grinnell is a natural fit. The United States hasn't hosted an Olympics in a while anyways, so this move makes complete sense."

Comparing this relocation to the purchase of the golf course, President Rain King said, "The College couldn't pass this opportunity up. As the first liberal arts college to host the Olympics, this will no doubt build our brand." King, acknowledging that the college will squander its entire endowment in preparation, claims that "this is what Buffett dreamed of."

Peterson listed many reasons why Grinnell was selected as Rio's replacement. "There are three racquetball courts in the Bear, plus a swimming pool. Perfect." Peterson also mentioned that "Grinnell has a bunch of flags, so you know they're committed to international cooperation."

Peterson continued, "Dorms will be used for the athlete village, finally enabling the IOC to separate athletes by sexual orientation and prevent the usual debauchery. The dining hall will operate all summer as well."

Other explanations for Grinnell's surprise choice include the airport and the impact of the Olympics roughly 37 restaurants, on a rural community like with Peterson highlighting Grinnell. I'll get tenure of ethnic food options. Brian Fitzgerald

Walmart's presence also helped Grinnell land the world's biggest sporting event as "even athletes about us SAs beginning need to make Walmart training so early, but now I can catch the end of the

The extensive hotels, games." Helen Jones, '17 said, "I like sports. This will be almost as good as the Grinnell Games."

King is confident that the benefits will outweigh the costs. "Sure, and we'll have to raise tuition by about 300%, but in the end I am confident that the students will be fine. You know how Professor of Classics, will Grinnell students are. They'll complain about the original Olympics from something, but eventually while they'll shut up and go away. Most of them probably don't even will estimate "the financial care."

SECURITY BLOTTER

9:43PM Officer goes to Harris Center to investigate an anonymous tip of 'imminent terrorist threat'

9:45PM Officer arrives: forgot it was puppies and pancakes night.

9:47PM Officer attempts to blend in surreptitiously whilst looking out for disturbers of the peace. Pets a dog. Dog wags its tail.

9:53PM Ski mask wearing individual enters the room, screams 'DEATH TO FINALS' and throws a cat into the crowd.

9:53PM Dogs go berserk and immediately leap towards middle to maul the cat. Cat sprints towards pancakes. Students, stressed out enough about finals, barely register what is going on.

9:54PM Officer attempts to restore peace, to no avail.

9:57PM Officer attempts to use 'Heel' command to bring dogs under her command.

9:57PM Officer is promptly ignored by all dogs except the one she pet earlier, who comes with a hopeful tail wag.

10:10PM Officer gives up hope: cat and suspect are nowhere to be found. Walks home, followed closely by dog. Officer calls dog 'Princess Millymeow'.

What Do You Think?

Budweiser is rebranding itself as "America" this summer.

What do you think?

Budweiser's Target Audience
Likes beer, money

"ok."

Uncle Sam
Red hot American blood

"Nothing says America like yeasty water!"

Rolling Rock
Gathers no moss

"The American Dream is dead and I do not wish to associate with its corpse.."

Asuh [2016],

It's been one heck of a ride. But this is just the Beginning. After all, time is cyclical. There is more than one of everything.

B(wenty)&S(ixteen)

Leo Abbe-Schneider has never been able to use a study room in Kistle. Katie Abrams peaked in high school as an all-state mime. Jocelyn Acosta rips down all the posters in the loggia every Saturday in a display of dominance. Nicole Albrecht will only donate to Grinnell in the name of reviving big monster cookies. Elizabeth Allen wonders what happened to Pepe, the Spanish house cat. Isabella Alsobrook wonders why the [CDO] won't answer their calls. Peter Anderson can't believe people are still talking about the white/blue dress thing. Tyler Anderson climbed out of their shell and promptly succumbed to predators' sharp claws. Toni Androski developed a fetish for aiding people in fulfilling their fetishes. Corson Androski developed a fetish for caramelized watermelons. Carlina Arango developed a fetish for people with fetishes for caramelized watermelons. Sarah Arena discovered Raynard Kington's vampiric secret and then died in mysterious circumstances. Sorab Arora entered an existential crisis when Choung Garden shut down for a month. Lane Atmore forgot that correlation does not imply causation and subsequently caused the apocalypse. Jeanette Au found a destroyed caramelized watermelon in Read Pit Kitchen - it did not taste good. Thomas Auen found their sexuality at Grinnell and promptly lost it three days before graduating. Connor Bailey got carded at La Cabana 2.0, despite being over 21. Rev. Harry Baker got infected and was subsequently quarantined by the US government after opening Ruby Barnard-Mayers's to-go box that had been in their room since January. Vasilisa Bashlovkina has an exam at 2PM on Friday during Finals week and is seriously considering committing serious crimes to avoid it. Omri Benami has officially seen it all. Iris Bennett has only recently discovered KDIC's frequency. Kevin Bennett has spent more hours watching Netflix than doing actual readings for class. Josie Bircher is considering paying $80 for the new Call of Duty game. Jack Blais is in a love/hate relationship with the Walking Dead. Anne Boldt learned the secret art of yodeling. Chase Booth made out with 99 people at 100 days and feels like something has been missing ever since. Angela Bowles Edwards managed to go through 4 years at DHall without spilling their food once. John Brady is red-green colordeaf. Nora Bresette Buccino once asked could Beau Bresslerspare spare some change for gas so Eric Brito could get themselves away from this place. Samuel Brody-Boyd said no. Hannah Brown only just found out about Gangnam style. Ryan Brown realized that life is just a series of chemical impulses across neural synapses and life is inherently meaningless. Evan Bruns set up a student group to lobby for a Starbucks in Grinnell. Susanne Bushman spent countless hours perfecting their imitation of the Proclaimers. Ian Byrd successfully avoided every Waltz party at Grinnell. Fin Byrne surreptitiously glanced at last years B&S for inspiration on potential events, and was promptly scolded by Bryson Cale. Erin Callaway talked shit and promptly got hit. David Cambronero Sanchez thinks the white/blue dress thing is a conspiracy by colorblind people to assert their dominance in society. Jason Camey was sorely dissapointed that YOU did not join them in streaking across Mac Field. Paulina Campbell witnessed a disturbing scene featuring a caramelized watermelon and members of their floor. Meredith Carroll would walk 500 miles, but Samuel Catanzaro would walk 500 more, just so that Jozi Chaet could walk 1000 miles to be at Dora Chan's door and ask them to pay up what they owe cause Tina Chen does not like to be kept waiting. Chaya Chetsanditkhun can only code in Python. Jason Chien chained themselves to the drink machine outside of Loose. Nicholas Chisholm spent 100 years frozen in an iceberg. Danielle Chorne watches too many Disney movies. Max Christensen was a contestant on Project Runway Junior. Evan Christianson still owns an iPod nano. Ebony Chuukwu uses chalk as cosmetics. Shayna Cohen doesn't even go here. Jacob Cohn ate a bowl of nails for breakfast. Without any milk. Addie Coley is actually a visiting professor. Willa Collins helped eliminate waste from 00003207 disposable plastic bottles. Helen Colliton created iocane powder in the Chemistry Lab. Jordie Compton can translate the Da Vinci code. Hannah Condon is Malia Obama's Year-Off Guide. Tim Conwell was offered a job by The Big Bang Theory. Alethea Cook makes couture gowns for nursing home residents. Isabel Cooke ran around screaming because they needed to use the toilet. Blake Creasey wears a different color of nail polish every. Single. Day. Rosie Crockett hums in the shower because singing is too mainstream. You think you know what Antoinette Cudney looks like, but actually they are just a costume they designed for themselves in the summer before first year. Henry Cummings begins their day by reciting the opening to "Avatar: the Last Airbender." Next year, Sam Curry will become at 5th year intern as the official Grinnell Pioneers Sportscaster. Adam Dalton was an extra in the unreleased High School Musical 4. Dan Davis. Ryan Davis dances competitive Zumba. Zack Davis is the head of seven and a half fake clubs on campus. Chaowen Deng is always first in line for chicken strips. Sara DeRosa loves apple cores instead of apples. Dilek Dervishogullari reads a page of the dictionary every day. Tyler Dewey single-handedly caused the downfall of the women's lacrosse team. Karan Dhingra only drinks pink lemonade. Ben Dion has been writing a secret, tell-all memoir about this place. Sophie Donlon washes their face with liquid lead. Helen Dougherty has the entire script of Bee Movie tattooed on their chest. Fatu Dramé went to GHS prom all four years of college. Camilla Dreasher never skipped a class. Elle Duncombe-Mills lost their P-card 25 times last year ALONE. Jack Dunnington glows when you turn the lights off and is therefore a sidecook. Tom Earnest dyes their hair every single day. Tela Ebersole taught Miley Cyrus about feminism. Charlie Eddy is still drunk off 10/10. Ezra Edgerton memorized the entire Harry Potter series. Rian Edwards owns a real lightsaber. Taylor Ellebb had the lowest number for room draw all 3 years. John Essig only reads "literary masterpieces". Gina Falada visits Disney World every year just to ride the teacups. Sarina Farb has a deathly fear of dandelions. Lamia Faruk believes that Kershaw is haunted. Yiting Feng has never had a class in ARH. Mikayla Findlay is using their phonathon experience to create a phonebank where Grinnell students can ask trustees for their money back. Graham Fisher took every single extra credit opportunity. After attending Grinnell College for four years, Mike Fitzpatrick can only recognize two smells: weed and manure. After graduation Kasey Fralick will be living in the Mayflower because they want to relive senior year forever. After second year, Cameron Frank never went to their dorm and instead lived in the Noyce basement. After starring in Tithead films for four consecutive years, Cal Froikin is ready to move to LA and become a professional actor. All of the laundry rooms are full because Rosie Fuqua is washing their clothes for the first time since first year. At night, Moses Gaither-Ganim runs an underground game show where the contestants are small woodland creatures. Everyone remembers Jasmine Gerritsen from that one party. Everything that Suha Gillani touches turns to polyester. Matt Godinsky has time to read for pleasure. Daniel Goldstein hasn't watched the news since Al Jazeera America. In Justus Goldstein-Shirley's opinion, the best study space is the roof of Noyce. Claire Graebner is a collective hallucination. Caroline Graham is a pond cow. Paul Grant is trying to buy the Pizza Hut from the College. It will never rain again unless you carry Madeline Gray up the mountain and sing while they drink. Eli Green knows where Tupac is. Look at this photograph, every time Alex Greenberg does, it makes them laugh. Amelia Greenberg wears dentures modeled off of Tom Cruise's teeth. Sheva Greenwood already has a "Grinnell College Alumni" bumper sticker. Taz Grout blew their Dining Dollars on Grille salads. Matt Grygo can turn invisible but only when it's between 32 and 36 degrees outside. Emily Hackman can't say "duty" without laughing. Yousuf Hafuda caught a pencil they dropped in a really cool way but no one saw it. Mira Hall celebrates 10/10 every morning at 10:10 AM. Edward Hardman cheated at Pub Quiz and lost anyway. Melissa Hardy conducted a torrid affair via Snapchat with a student from Macalester. Eliza Harrison convinced SHACS to treat them with aromatherapy. Thatcher Healy does shots of Purell. Becca Heller thinks you're really cool, no hetero. Chris Hellman eats staples in their spare time. Sarah Henderson drinks the water from Arbor Lake. Megan Hervey failed to find housing and has slept in the massage chair all year. Michael Himmel was voted the best hall chime mime three years in a row. Alissa Hirsch doesn't have an advisor. Maddie Howland fought the law, and the law offered a reasonable compromise. Edward Hsieh has a hard exoskeleton. Yian Hu found out that on Burling 4th, people can definitely still hear you scream. Glenys Hunt found the fountain of youth, but filled it up with apple juice and it stopped working. Michael Hurley misses Scrumpy. Micah Iticovici frequently eats insulation. Ivy Jenn has a collection of vintage Outtakes. Renn Jervis has been calling the JRC "The JeRK" for four years but it never caught on. Christine Johnson has been getting through senior year by putting eighteen Splendas in their coffee. Tracy Johnson has been squatting in the transportation museum all year. Jennifer Joy has created an indestructible pancake umbrella, with which they use whenever it is raining. Ambar Kakkar has developed a physical revulsion to any mention of the name Burling. Jeca Kaplanovic has gone fishing down on the Mainstream. Rachel Keen has methodically moved every tree on campus exactly two inches SSW over four years. Hannah Kelley has pencils for fingers. Michael Kelley inspired M. Night Shyamalan's hit film, "The Happening". Vincent Kelley has skipped graduation in lieu of disappearing to Mars because they are too out of this world. Amy Kieruzel has traveled back in time and is already an alum. Prisca Kim, water bottle. Patrick Kinley hatched from an egg. Coby Klar was extra #59 on the new Ghostbusters. Carley Kleinhans inhaled so much helium their voice changed permanently. Nate Kolacia is an undercover government official. Sophie Kornbluh found her, and they were both in our hearts all along...[fakepapr] 4 lyfe. David Koychev is banned from every state ending in the letter S. Sam Kubica is buying back the Grinnell golf course. Ivy Kuhn is finishing a chair made out of all the essays they wrote while at Grinnell. Kumar

Kumar is guest starring in a Kum & Go commercial. Anna Kuure-Kinsey is just, like, super quirky. Anthony LaMacchia is licensed to krill. Emma Lange is the real Dirty Dan. Brennan Langenbach is like an Egg McMuffin but made with donuts. Kathryn Lasseter is planning on moving to whatever state is most highly contested in the general election in order to most effectively exert their democratic rights. Conard Lee is RANDOM lol XD penguin! Doyi Lee is so cool they counteract global warming. Gracia Lee is starting to regret getting a tattoo of their mailbox combination. Caleb Leedy plans to open a food truck selling cooked chard. Due to their time at Grinnell, Gabe Lehman will never again cut fruit in their life. David Leitson is terrified that in the near future, no one will remember the stir-fry bar. Brent LeMoine is the CEO of a new chewing gum brand: the Grinnell Bubble. Emma Leverich is the inside agent for Grinnell's crow population. Hayley Levin is traveling in a tiny house on wheels on I-80 right now. Sydney Levison is trying to use their P-card in the real world. Mark Lewis is writing a paper on thundersnow. Fangda Li knows that Bush did 10/10. Yishi Liang has finally admitted to the inferiority of a certain publication. Emma Liddell knows who the Mystery Pooper was. Hannah Lieberman doesn't just like; they love. Zach Liebman loves Marmite. Su Jin Lim no longer remembers the name of anyone in their tutorial. Dana Lindenberg only drinks Voss water out of a purple canteen. Shannon Lindstrom only speaks in iambic pentameter. Angela Liu only survived Grinnell this year thanks to their yearlong supply of 5 Hour Energy. Jared Liu opened the door to the Grille during the winter and turned into a pillar of salt. Grace Lloyd plans on getting a suit embroidered with the Grinnell logo in order to show their alumni spirit. Aditi Lohia plans to become a CIA agent after graduation so pretend you never read this. Zhengyi Lu puts the "cement" in "commencement". Alex Lundy puts the "vest" in "investment". Anthony Mack quilts every one of their dorm decorations. Gloria Magege recently emerged from the tunnels after getting lost during NSO. Evan Manuella secretly wants RayKay to be their best friend. Greg Margida still prefers to use the landline. Jalyn Marks still uses Windows 95. James Marlow still uses YikYak. Bruno Maroniene strives to be the tickler champion of the Midwest. Shaun Mataire takes a shower in the grass dew every day. Camila Mateo Volkart thinks the mascot should be Pioneery McPioneerface. Nick Matesanz thinks cockroaches are cute. Jordan Matosky thinks that Rachel Green from FRIENDS is the literal bee's knees. Krista Matthews-Saugstad took every survey and still never won a bookstore gift card. China Mauck once embezzled SGA funds to buy furniture. Saw Min Maw vapes catnip. Rostom Mbarek waited in the chicken strips line for an entire semester. Rita McCall appropriates cultures of bacteria. Sydney McClendon wants to hang out with Mr. Noodle.

Meagan McKinstry was hired by Google to be a Human Sundial. Brogan McWilliams was offered a six-figure salary from Borders. Sarah Mehanna was the Gerber Baby's stunt double. Melissa Melloy wears plaid contact lenses. Gabby Mercado will forever be a Grinnell College meme. Cassandra Miller can't tell the difference between bison and buffalo. Phoebe Mogharei still doesn't know what Neverland is. Agustín Molina will still religiously check the online dining hall menu even after graduating. Isabel Monaghan wishes Grinnell offered graduate degrees. Boyd Monson's proudest Grinnell achievement is finally becoming fully nocturnal as of this year. Minna Montgomery wishes there were more hot dog rollers. Elizabeth Moore wrote a final paper using only emojis. Rachael Morgan's post-grad plans are to breed and train an elite class of synchronized swimming armadillos. Barrett Morrissette's post-grad plans are to invest in Post brand cereal products. Yaseen Morshed's reflection is always upside-down. Colleen Moser never gets caught. Jackie Mukinisha never told people they weren't going to Cornell. Elias Mulhall only showers at the Bear. Lex Mundell pays by debit card at the grill. Not all Roberto Munoz. Nino Murillostill wishes they got into Oberlin. Dylan Murphy submitted fan fiction to the Grinnell Review. Jack Muskopf takes baths in Cleveland. Lars Naborn thinks Rabbi Rob is bae. Queenster Nartey thought Dean Bakopoulos was the Dean of the College. Sophie Neems trained daily for Minute to Win It. Khoa Nguyen was the inspiration for Kevin the Minion. Tiffany Nguyen has a melting point above 2750 degrees Fahrenheit. Kit Nika is heading back up the river to spawn. Leland Nordin's superpower of choice is the ability to communicate with silverfish. Jen-Ai Notman wants you to wake up, sheeple... Ben Nydegger can be your angle...or your devil... Rosie O'Brien can turn invisible but only when they're sleeping and no one is watching. Alex Odom isn't so much friends with darkness. They're more like work acquaintances. Nelson Ogbuagu has perfected the art of the combat roll. Katy Oldach is made of just one giant cell. Albert Owusu-Asare thrives in dark and loamy soil. Luke Panciera wants to drop the moon into the ocean. Thomas Pearson claims they've never cheated at bingo. Ryan Penafior wants to rub chocolate on your skin so you live forever. Maddy Pesch is going to spend the summer shadowing yeast. Izzie Pfeiffer plans to follow the Chemtrails and find out where they lead. Mai Pham believes the Earth is neither flat or spherical, but egg-shaped. Don't ever talk to Phoebe Pinder or their son or their son's son or their son's son's sons or their son's son's sons' son again. Wesley Pollock can fit their entire body into a to-go box. Virginia Purcell was replaced by a swarm of bees in a very realistic human costume a long, long time ago. Kelly Pyzik believes in ghosts, thinks they can achieve anything they set their minds on. Catherine Ramirez is going to spend the next year in a gap under their house. Rebecca Rasmussen secured a job as a personal computer.

CJ Ray has been described with words such as “loamy,” “absorbent,” and “nutrient rich.” Erik Raymakers is covered in a thin film of mucous that protects them from things like dust and people collecting beer money. Tatiana Reigada has spent all four years at college training to be a human fog machine. Nicolle Rhim has a very lovely nose. I’m proud of them. Ruth Riedl has legs for days. Weeks even. Probably even months. Misha Rindisbacher found a penny, picked it up, all day long they gave no fucks. Clare Roberts is determined to teach a robot how to love. Connor Robetorye will be launched into space in t-minus 3...2...1... Thomas Robinson is on the run, but we’re not entirely sure which run. It’s unclear. Dixon Romeo’s bounty is set to increase to 42 beer can tabs by commencement. Jesse Romo’s curse will lie on the college and its inhabitants for the rest of days. Sam Ross paid for college via grave robbing. Known reptilians / lizard people Barbara and George Bush respond directly to Lauren Roush. William Royle is returning to their roots, approximately 2 – 3 meters under the ground. What’s better than this? Just Claire Ruegg being Claire Ruegg. Julia Rumley wants to wrap you in their big, strong arms ;) Greg Ruzich did a sick handstand, wow we can’t believe you missed it. An attempt to clone [REDACTED] resulted in the formation of Lana Sabb. John Sachs played with fire, had a good time and would recommend doing it. Reggie Sackey-Addo runs a broken glass cartel. Karol Sadkowski experimented a lot in college. Joey Saenz has Changed so much in college. Amrita Saha draws hearts that look like butts. Alia Sajani sees with their tongue. Jenny Samuels had a life-changing study abroad experience. Caitlin Scaife couldn’t even tell they were abroad. Noah Schlager doesn’t like being called a broad. Phineas Schlossberg is single and ready to Pringle. Andie Semlow is single and ready to get shingles. Ham Serunjogi melts in your mouth, not in your hand. Like a good neighbor, Megan Settle is there. There’s some things money can’t buy; for everything else, there’s Dana Sherry. Sherwood is delicate and needs to be shipped in packing peanuts. Jae Hong Shin went on Club Penguin without their parents’ permission. Sophia Shin found 4 new Carly Rae Jepsen songs. Molly Shortell started worshipping Cthulhu, but Cthulhu only viewed them as an acquaintance. Prakriti Shrestha attempted to rebrand hell week as Heaven Fortnight. Ameer Shujjah experimented a lot in college, namely due to a chemistry-heavy courseload. Seiya Sigel flirted with fiscal irresponsibility in college. Ashwin Sivaramakrishnan answered an interview question in an elevator, and was wrong on so many levels. Eva Smith can recognize song by the initial drum roll. Samantha Snodgrass ignored the five-second rule. Once. Mark Spero changed their Facebook profile picture a total of 69 times this year and had a little giggle. Kristen Stacey saw two trucks having sex. Lisa Stern is so tough she eats kiwis without peeling them. Do not make eye contact with Jermaine

Stewart-Webb or they will charge. Hannah Storch’s Neopets account recently got hacked and could really use some help. Kate Strain is in the process of replacing all the blood in their body with egg whites. Jesse Sturgeon’s muscles involuntarily flex. Sanjay Sudhir has made 6 extra e-mails to get more TIDAL free trials. Tasnim Tabassum always eats in bed but when they spill crumbs they just suck them up like a human vacuum cleaner. It’s rumored that Inara Tareque bribed all the professors in their department for award nominations. Danielle Tavasti bit me . . . and it really hurt . . . Emma Thomasch is shimmying uncontrollably. Please help them. Sam Tinkham ate a vegetable, once, when they were a child. Christine Tran will only eat banan bread. There’s nothing but fireworks, Bao Tran, and stars in the sky tonight. Anna Transit is biding their time until Green Day is in vogue again. Andrew Troxell is currently trapped in the Dank Hour. Victoria Tsou wants to know how much they could get for a kidney. Katy Tucker is training to be a sabrage master. Alex Turner is really feeling it. Shae Turner’s favorite sin is Sunday night laundry. Eleanor Tursman marinates every night in garlic and olive oil. Buffalo buffalo Buffalo buffalo buffalo Kai Unrath’s buffalo. Jaya Vallis dropped it like it’s hot, broke it, had to buy it. Alberto Vazquez has two sets of teeth, like a shark. They’re a shark. Similar to ball, Tim Villanueva is life. Rachel von Holst is cross-faded on life. Oanh Vu broke Back Mountain. Veethi Vyas thirsts for the flesh of the guilty. Sibyl Wang now knows the history and context surrounding Vladimir Nabokov’s controversial book Lolita but still cannot do their taxes. Connie Wang overcame all odds to become a proud member of the evens. Dax Ward formed part of a K-Pop heavy metal band. Johncharles Ward is like Lake Michigan: 70% water. Madeline Warnick only listens to ringtones. Taylor Watts mlem mlemmed all four years of college. Erin Weber did not know how to spell “correlation” and was properly chastised. Kristina Weber ignored #tbt and actually threw forward. Kenneth Yuhui Wee has no sense of object permanence. Earnest Wheeler studied the feeding habits of birds and their young extensively. Paige Wheeler wears three different shoe sizes. Malachi Wickman is cobalt oxygen lithium oxygen. Jill Wielgos is more effervescent than a bottle of André. Chloe Williams is skipping graduation to go to Wasserbahn. Danielle Williams raised a baby train as their own. Ian Windham only drinks Manischewitz. Zoe Wolter is not clutter. Duncan Wood like to play a game. Jessica Wood n’t. Will Xu is experiencing a little bit of turbulence here, folks. Yanling Xu can smell your fear. Marissa Yetter is an acidic bitch. Hening Zhang [citation needed]. Amy Zhou has a skeleton under their SKIN. Jacob Ziontz is ready to apply their knowledge of power structures and societal discourses to their new accounting job.

Alice from page 1

on Roduex's 1961 Metaphysics and the Mind, as per tradition.

"We truly couldn't comprehend how receptive and trusting our little buddies were," said Joshua Lee '17, "like, I'm this little dot, this little nothing; who am I to transpose three light-years of celestial patterns onto the molecular makeup of Kimmy's elbow skin? But she let me try. We thought...we thought we were taking care of them—but they were taking care of us" Lee concluded, wiping a tear from a dilated pupil.

"I looked into their eyes," said a stoic

Tamisha Dell, '16. "And I never looked out."

The Ignite students seemed awestruck by their teachers.

"Mr. Gabriel could hold music in his hands. Then he handed the end of "Stairway to Heaven" to me—it was soft like my gerbil!" declared Thomas.

"Miss Dell took all the girls to the Meditation Zone, had us cut a strawberry in half and "emotionally investigate" it. Then we each found one partner put the strawberry halves back together, and that's how we all found out about Lila's bad vibe. Her soul is moldy and full of hatred," recalled Jane Dimple, a third grader. "But that's okay! I never talk to her anyway," she said.

At the end of the day, parents were delighted to find Grinnell student-teachers intimately engaging with their children.

Some Grinnellians reportedly cried during pick-up. Others claimed they were siblings of the children, and demanded to be taken home and given a snack. Game theory professor Haley Schackman found her son writing "all the answers" on post-it notes attached to two of her students' shaved scalps.

"I'm so glad they inspired the scientist in Tony. His teacher said he was old to enough to experiment. And look at all these cute little pieces of paper they gave us to bring home!" exclaimed Cogen Shoebody, an area mom.

Meanwhile, members of the education department celebrated the 'astounding success' and can't wait to expand this program into other areas. "This was a huge success," Mrs. Teckie, Ignite head-coordinator, said. "I can't wait for the middle school's sex education class to take their very first field trip to Titular Head next year."

Deirdre Finds a Job...

Dierdre felt an icy chill of dread infuse her gut, turning her already deathly cold skin even colder. For Dierdre had realized that she would have to find a job. And though Dierdre had many skills due to her unique abilities and the challenging experiences she had undergone, these would not prepare her. For Deedee's entire life had been centered around Vampyre Slayer, which was her one true Calling, passed down through generations of her family. Even when this slight and frail looking yet icily beautiful girl had been turned into a vampyre by her former Lover, she continued to slay the very ones she was now one of.

But this was different. For she had to find a job in the Other World, that of the those who where Ungifted, who didn't even know vampyres existed. And yet, after all but one, him, had turned against her and driven her from all havens, she had nowhere to turn. So she found herself in front of this "Help Wanted" sign on a quaint coffee shop. Coffee was, truly, an unknown concept this raven haired girl.

Dodoro looked down at her beauteous resume. It was written in the blood of her enemies on parchment made of the skin of lovers who had betrayed her. She slowly licked each of the two entries: "Vampire. 1,833 years. Duties: sapping the life force of innocents." "Vampire hunter. 1,832 years. Duties: slaying the Ungodly." It tasted of drivel and lotion. It tasted of the apprehension associated with changing her path, her path that had been Written, but from which she was now straying like a ghoul who has realized his husband-to-be has been a mere mortal all along. Slowly and sensually, Diphtheria folded her resume into the shape of a pentagram, sending her wicked yet alluring life force down her arms and through her fingertips into the very fibres of its being. Nobody would be able to resist Dramaturgy when their eyes absorbed the delicious and sensual writing on the page.

Deidra walked away from coffee house, determined not to let the passion that was slowly building up inside her cloud her judgement. She was on a mission, and she was going to do it. "Oh Deedums." His voice was warm and husky, like a melted dark chocolate pudding. She turned slowly, swaying in a gently anxious samba. "You forgot something in my... office" He said with a succulent pause and licked his engorged lips with a lick that stopped earth and time. "Why don't you come back in and get it?" And like that he fixed her with an impaling stare that stabbed her deeply, pierced her soul, and punctured her will. For a fraction of a second, they lock eyes, and the Earth shifts slightly on its axis. She knows she should oppose him. She also knows she was powerless to resist him. "Of course"

But she quit. A breeze blew past her and carried black rose petals along as it swept through her hair. Rhododendron almost thought her heart was pounding but then she remembered that she her heart hasn't beat since she last saw her former lover, Percivius VI. She spun on her heel as she walked along the graveyard beach. The ocean breeze smelled like death and she loved it. Diddire arrived at the building, a red obsidian glass building with two suited beings standing outside. Her new job. One being was... "Percivius?" deidgeri shrieked. He looked surprised, then angry, then lustful. "SHE'S the one taking MY job, John?" The woman (John) smirked and said "yeah, she is. Do you have a problem with that?" She flexed and her muscles tore through her shirt and Deirdaddy felt the blood rush to her face... She coolly walked by Percivius. John put her soft yet firm hand on her shoulder. "Welcome to The Helltown Coffee Shop."

single mama of [2016]

seeks

single daddy of [2016]

meet me at the cummencement stage at midnight ;)

HAWKEYE

Rayké's surprise new album!

LOST: 4 LONELY DWEEBS. IF FOUND PLEASE RETURN IMMEDIATELY

LAST SEEN BEING PELTED WITH TEETH

Self-Gov Crashes Own Funeral

JRC 101- Friday May byline.
6 – A surprise guest at the ‘Funeral for Self-Gov?????’ put the ? in ‘?????’
Last Friday, a group of students gathered to mourn the passing of Self-Gov and recount memories of its life.
Complete with sparkling cider, brownie cookies, sparkling cider, and some lovely eulogies, the funeral was held in the JRC. The event was attended by students, professors, and members of the community. Perhaps the most interesting guest, however, was Self-Gov itself.
According to attendees, Self-Gov exclaimed, “I, Self-Gov, am alive and well!”, as they clawed their way out of a flower strewn grave, clods of dirt flinging every which way.
“Our great and powerful leader, President Kaynard Rington, has resurrected me! And he’s made me stronger than ever!”
Self-Gov reportedly began to explain their new outlook on life those surrounding them. As they spoke, a campus memo restating the words appeared in student’s inboxes line

“My goal is to encourage everyone to understand self governance. For example, it’s considered rude to have another glass of cider when everyone hasn’t already drank one yet,” Self-Gov explained to Professor Watkins, Psychology. “That wasn’t very me of you!”
Self -Gov later offered to teach students that racial diversity is basically economic diversity, and that certain programs should have been disbanded, but by that time most students had left.
When asked about the decrease in attendance at the funeral, Self-Gov said, “They’ve probably left to eat a delicious dining hall meal! They’ll be back though... now that I’ve been resurrected, I’m going to remind them how great I am for the rest of my existence.”
Although the new Self-Gov is excited to unleash their new take on the world, some students are not as receptive.
“I got about two sentences into the ten page manifesto before I decided it wasn’t worth it,” Jay Thrance ’17, shook her head. “I’ve got exams to study for!”

“Primarily, President Rington decided to teach me about why we needed these changes on campus. Self-Gov must change with the times.”
After a few sips of sparkling cider, Self Gov continued to speak as students gathered around to listen to their new plan.
“I’m here to discuss different crucial topics on campus. Like window décor, and chalk art, and controversial blog postings!” they explained. “For starters, we probably should just accept that when our President makes a decision, they probably know what’s best for the rest of us. It’s fun, am I right?”
When asked about further plans for their future, Self-Gov demurred.
“You know, I’m just hoping that my new look goes over well. I mean, you haven’t noticed all of my changes until now, so we’re just going to keep implementing new and exciting things. I mean, does anyone really enjoy 10/10? I know I don’t.”
Self-Gov also took the opportunity to talk to some of the professors as well.

welp

Sophie Kornbluh '16

I know that I come off as the person on campus who always has something to laugh about, but Grinnell has never been an easy place for me to exist. If I had to sum up these past four years in brief, I would say it has been a winning battle. Not the kind that makes you pump your fist in triumph, but the kind that drains all of your energy so that by the time you’re done all you want to do is sleep for a month.

In my first year I was plagued constantly with the idea that I was a burden to my friends, that I wasn’t capable of developing and maintaining meaningful friendships, that I would always be alone. These obsessive thoughts, which were later identified as OCD, drove me into a consistent state of near-panic, to the point that I was crying several times a day and began to feel that there was no escape.

My privilege, ultimately, saved me: I was able to gain access to mental health resources back home (and more importantly, outside of SHACS) that provided me with the tools I needed to endure the rest of the year.
Since then, things have improved, but new challenges have always sprung up. On top of the lingering ghosts of my obsessions about friendship, which flare up occasionally to remind me that my mind does not function normally, I have also endured the mental health crises of friends, my own sexual and gender identity crises, several bizarre and painful romantic entanglements, the loss of a friend, and on top of it all, the expectations that come with being a full-time student.

Let me be clear, I am not trying to contribute the culture of competitive suffering here at Grinnell. I am just trying to share as candidly as possible the fact that this is a fucking hard place to be, and that hopefully by putting all of my struggles out in the open, I can put a familiar face on the shitstorm that so many of us experience here. (And I acknowledge that I am coming from a position where I have had access to many resources that others lack. This is just my story.)

And it definitely hasn’t all been negative. Going through tough stuff has, somewhat ironically, helped me to develop some incredibly close relationships built on mutual trust and understanding. I’ve learned that I am capable of overcoming much more than I ever could have imagined was possible. I’ve learned how good communication can make all the difference in a hairy situation. And then there have been the experiences that were genuinely good for me, like writing for the B&S, being part of an improv troupe, and getting drunk for “religious purposes”.

So was it worth it? Probably...? A lot of the struggles that I’ve had have been either internal or a result of being a young person learning to be independent for the first time, rather than Grinnell-specific, so no matter what I’d done after high school, I would have learned many of the same lessons. (That’s not to say that Grinnell has done everything right, of course.) But there’s something unique about this place that allows it to simultaneously be a simmering cesspool of stress and also an oasis of creative self-expression. And for the latter, I am grateful.

INFOGRAPHIC

How to Get Professors to Drink with You During Block Party

Loudly exclaim that professors don't know how to drink and hope their pride compels them to act

Use reverse psychology and tell them not to drink

TRUST ME
I'M A

Bribery

TRUST ME
I'M A
PROFESSOR

Offer them alcohol. They're middle aged adults living in the middle of nowhere, of course they want a drink

Cause a social scene

Tell them that the professor/student divide is a social construct and there's no reason why they shouldn't drink with you

Blackmail, battery, and other coercive measures

Base-Paired for Life:

- Adenine: Sophie Kornbluh '16
- Guanine: Aaron Weerasinghe '17
- Thymine: Abraham Mhaidli '17
- Cytosine: Nina Galanter '18
- Uracil: Willa Collins '16, Emma Lange '16, Kate Strain '16, Isaac Mielke '18, Peter Sills '18, Elizabeth Zak '18, Andrea Baumgartel '19, Jacob Friedman '19, Katie Lou McCusker '19

The B&S is printed by the Times-Republican of Marshalltown, IA. The B&S is a SPARC publication. All publications funded by SPARC are copyright of SPARC and cannot be reproduced elsewhere without specific written consent from SPARC.

Thanks for a great year!
We're always looking for new people. Bring yourselves and a sense of fun(ny) to next semester's meetings!

Email us for more info at [fakepapr] or visit www.fakepapr.com or www.facebook.com/fakepapr

FIND US!

This Week's Playlist In Honor of [2016]

- This Love-Maroon 5
- Closing Time-Semisonic
- Gangnam Style-PSY
- I Love It-Icona Pop ft. Charli XCX